Name: _____ Reach the Star
Start at the edge of the paper and cut along the dotted line until you reach the star.

A handwriting practice sheet for the letter 'A'. At the top, it shows a large uppercase 'A' and a lowercase 'a' with numbered arrows indicating the stroke order: 1 for the first stroke, 2 for the second, and 3 for the third. Below this are eight rows of dashed 'A' and 'a' characters for tracing. The sheet is watermarked with 'dreamstime.com' and 'ID 13333797 © Supermompape'.

A lot of schools are starting with cursive instead of printing. That's an awful lot of variation even if your child doesn't have a super unique name. Movements will include horizontal, vertical, curves, zig-zags, and more. Did you know that there are over five thousand popular first names in the US alone? Just insert the spelling words and have your older kids trace over them on the worksheet. What that means is providing tracing name worksheets and encouraging kids to do them without being forceful. When preschoolers are first learning name writing it's important to make things really simple for them. I love this name tracing generator because you can choose from multiple fonts. For younger children you could use the bubble letter font to create a coloring page. Each page features isolated strokes for students to practice prior to tracing the letter itself. Multiple path mazes are provided for students to work on their small motor control. To encourage concentration on each letter you can have them alternate what colours they use to write. Writing practice worksheets are also a great way to practice spelling and vocabulary in a second language at any age. You can use it to create your own name writing paper in guided printing, handwriting/cursive writing, bubble letters, and more. They're perfect for your preschool aged kids, kindergarten writing practice, homeschool families, and even working on writing skills with older children. For more hands-on alphabet fun, try our Fine Motor Alphabet Bundle Free Letter Tracing Worksheets, Number Tracing Worksheets, Name Tracing Worksheets, Shape Tracing, Picture Tracing, Line Tracing and so much more! These tracing worksheets build important prewriting skills that will prepare your preschool and kindergarten students for handwriting exercises in the years to come. Writing practice isn't just for preschoolers and kindergarten students. The first step is to trace letters. We provide a set of 26 tracing letter worksheets, each with both upper case and lower case letters, that will help your kids build their penmanship skills. You can customize it with your child's exact name (both first and last!) even if you use unique spelling. This writing worksheet generator replaces blank name tracing worksheets because you can finally customize them to say anything you want! How to Use Name Tracing Worksheets These free name tracing worksheets for preschool are perfect for developing those beginner writing skills in kids. These handwriting worksheets are super fun and provide your students with dot-to-dot activities, and following instructions prompts. These free alphabet tracing worksheets will have your students building key fine motor skills. If something is too boring you might start getting resistance in the future when the pressure is higher to teach these early skills. Each sheet features multiple opportunities to trace the numbers 1-20, with the same number of pictures to count. These free name tracing worksheets are great for extra spelling practice. It would be impossible to create tracing name worksheets for each and every name like we do with other early words. The printable name tracing worksheets generator is completely free and available on the Create Printables website. You'll find horizontal lines, vertical lines, diagonal lines, wavy lines, shapes, jagged lines and more. When you're working with young children start with less repetitions. Finally, most preschoolers can identify their name. Too many can be overwhelming, plus the larger words are easier to trace for little ones. How to Make Name Writing Practice More Fun Even enthusiastic kids can get burnt out on name tracing worksheets. These are both great for kids of all ages! Pre-writers will practice letter recognition and older kids can get creative. For older children who need to practice their writing skills try changing out the names with other things they find interesting like TV show characters or friends' names. Unlike other words, preschoolers have plenty of reasons to write their names. But, names can be so diverse! That's why I've created this free editable name tracing worksheet printable so your child can practice writing their name. Another great way to make things fun is by turning the activity into something more than just writing practice. All you have to do is insert your child's name and how many times you'd like the name repeated. You can also use this free name writing generator to help kids practice handwriting their name. This is a FUN way to sneak in a little letter formation practice while having fun. You could start with your kid's first name, then move on to including the middle and last name. To turn the name writing worksheet into a custom name craft just enter the name with one repetition with the paper set to landscape. If that's something you want to work on at home choose the cursive font when creating your printable. Why Should Kids Learn to Write Their Name? It's really important to make sure kids have fun while developing preschool skills. With our free printable shape tracing worksheets students will learn shape recognition, shape symmetry, tracing shapes, patterns and more! Preschool students build pre-handwriting skills with these free picture tracing worksheets! Features seasonal themes for the year, this set builds small motor control muscles needed for handwriting exercises. Students build key letter formation skills with these free printable alphabet tracing worksheets. These simple ABC tracing worksheets also include beginning letter pictures for extra learning fun! Free printable number tracing worksheets for kids! Your students will practice writing and counting skills with these number worksheets. Fine motors skills are developed by strengthening small motor muscles, and our free printable tracing worksheets will help build endurance and control. Our free letter tracing worksheets will have your students writing through the uppercase and lowercase alphabet with ease. Simply type in your chosen name, sight word, or spelling list word and your students will have ample opportunity to practice. Students build fine motor control with these free line tracing worksheets. This set makes the perfect pencil control workbook. Free Shape Tracing Worksheets and activity pages for kids! These shapes worksheets are perfect for preschool and kindergarten students who are learning all about the different shapes. They'll still develop important pre-writing skills like muscle strength, pencil grip, and letter formation while also getting to write something that relates to their life. Then as they gain confidence in their writing you can make the letters smaller and include more lines. Writing formation guides are optional and it really depends on the kid. With name writing practice kids will be able to label their own artwork, sign their name on cards (Valentine's Day is a great opportunity to practice name writing!), and it helps with general word recognition. Since it's more practical than other words it's easier to keep preschoolers focused when practicing name writing. My best advice is to allow the child to lead in your learning. Then have them decorate their name however they want. I've also created activities for my kids by painting the letters of their names and decorating them with stickers. Skip to main content Once students can trace, copy and write lines and patterns, they are ready to learn to form letters. It can be challenging to convince pre-readers to write words they can't yet read. I usually recommend starting early with name writing because it's something most kids will find useful even from a young age. That includes both identifying and writing a child's name. New name tracing worksheets available: Name Tracing Practice Pack Seasonal Name Tracing Practice Free Editable Name Tracing Worksheet Practice Printable Most children don't need to be able to write well by the time they enter kindergarten but even preschool classes work on teaching name recognition. Each page features the lowercase and uppercase alphabet for students to trace. Even older kids can benefit, especially if they're learning cursive. You can also use these writing practice printables to practice spelling. Tracing letters worksheet Kids all learn at different paces, but one of the best ways to start with writing is having your child practice their name. Each worksheet features multiple opportunities for students to trace and write letters. Or have them practice names of family members and friends! What Font Should I Use For Name Tracing? Can You Use These Free Name Tracing Worksheets With Older Kids? If they're completely uninterested, pause and try again at a different time or when they're older. To keep kiddos engaged, a beginning letter picture is included for students to trace. With these worksheets students are not required to write cursive on their own instead, they will trace each uppercase and lowercase letter for ample practice with letter formation. Try experimenting with different font styles and see what works best for you. Printable names in bubble letters are great for beginners or if you're doing other crafts with their name. That's where this name tracing worksheet generator works great. How Can You Make Your Own Name Writing Printables? Not only is it an important early skill that they'll use, it's also something that they'll want to practice. A beginning pictures is shown as well for beginning letter sound reinforcement. This is a free set of alphabet tracing worksheets for students working on uppercase letter formation. Which font you go with depends on your child's age, abilities, preferences, and your learning goals. It's popular for parents, especially when doing preschool and kindergarten age name writing practice, to opt for dotted letters that can be traced over. Personally, I love to use name tracing worksheets to help develop those early writing skills. Why Use a Name Tracing Worksheet Generator?
